Oct 16, 2017 What's on this page? This page contains a list of some Cisco router software and hardware. This list includes most of the software and hardware versions, together with a short description, related links, and any user-visible information. This page also includes a list of tools that can be used to configure the router for specific cases. This page represents the publicly available information that has been retrieved from Cisco and the Internet. The information is provided as-is and with no warranty or guarantee, either expressed or implied. In some cases, the author and other contributors may hold patent, copyright or trade-secret information that is covered by the license terms. Whether in production or still in development, an application is defined as released when all known testing is complete. Packets are delivered to customers with an operational/feature set indistinguishable from the shipping package. Features are only available on development releases and not on release candidate or production software. Some features are only available on the software-specific supported hardware model. It is the software developer's responsibility to adhere to the included feature and version numbers for all installed software.

License terms include a warranty that the software is covered by an applicable license and does not infringe upon the patent, copyright or trade secrets of any third party, or incorporate any material that is subject to licensing requirements of any other party. Updates to the software and documentation can be obtained from the Web sites listed under Related Links. All links to Web sites provided in this document are not editorial endorsements of the Web site's content and presence on the Web site should not be viewed as an endorsement of any product, company or organization. Cisco software is covered by a license agreement. To be eligible for a Cisco license, the software to be covered by the license must be a Cisco-distributed software product as well as a Cisco-supplied derivative of another Cisco-distributed software product.

Firmware is covered by a license agreement as well as the system and file loading requirements described under Related Links. Cisco provides a file loading system, loader.sys, that conforms to the ISO 9660 and ASCII standards. All Cisco data sheets in this document are available for review from Cisco Systems; information on obtaining documentation is provided in the Related Links
